Jesus Loves the Little Children of the World

To add to our discussion today, I read about a book that was written in 1937 entitled, If I Open My Door. In it the author described a church that was planning to build a new building to fellowship and worship in. In the main building where they would worship together, there was a stained glass window depicting children worshipping Jesus.

The elders of the church hired an artist to paint a picture of the proposed window. He fulfilled the assignment, and that night he dreamed he heard a noise in his studio. Going to investigate, he saw a stranger altering his picture. He cried out, “Stop! You’ll ruin it!”. But the stranger answered, “You have already ruined it!”. The intruder then explained that the children’s faces had all been one color, but he was using many colors. When the intruder said that he wanted children of all nations and races to come to him, the artist realized he was talking to Jesus Himself.

In our lesson today, we will learn from Peter that in a world where racial differences often lead to separation and conflict, it’s imperative that Christians work for change, unity, and peace (Acts 10:34-35). He was taught a very important lesson that Jesus went to the cross to bring salvation to people of every nation, both Jew and Gentile.

Our focus and commitment must go beyond the barriers that have historically divided the human family. Before we worship together this morning, please take the time to read Romans 1:16-17; Galatians 3:26-28; and Revelations 5:9. True transformation will help us to remember: Jesus loves all people, not just the ones who look like you.
